Forecast for Friday 30 Jul 2021

Weather: Cloudy and windy with morning rain, locally heavy, clearing. Remaining cloudy into the early afternoon, however cloud tending to break up a little allowing some brighter spells later in the day, but also sparking a few showers. The odd rumble of thunder cannot be completely ruled out.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 10% rising to 90% from early afternoon.

Visibility: Cloud obscuring hills above 600m, particularly during the morning, with the odd patch down to 300m in places and obscuring views from the tops. Views also limited at lower levels with rain leading to only moderate visibility. As cloud lifts and breaks a little during the afternoon visibilities will improve a little but some of the higher summits remaining in cloud throughout, mainly above 800m. Further reductions to poor likely during any heavy showers

Meteorologist's View

Very poor conditions at first, with rain and cloud on hills. Some improvement through the afternoon, however showers are possible, leading to further transient periods of poor conditions, especially on the tops. Windy at times, with gusts likely exceeding 40mph across highest points. Greatest risk during the morning. Afternoon showers could include the odd thundery burst, so be prepared to change plans as needed.
